Paul Whiteman Was Defendant in Court Action Here Friday

Orchestra Would Restrain Whiteman From Using Name "King of Jazz"—Decision Reserved.

Frank E. Graves of Albany, known as King Jazz, moved before Judge John T. Loughran in special session of supreme court Friday for a temporary injunction restraining Paul Whiteman from using the term "King of Jazz" which Graves contends is so similar to the name under which he has built up a reputation that it is injuring the Albany orchestra's business. The motion for a temporary injunction pending trial in an action for a permanent injunction consumed a great deal of time and was argued by counsel on both sides as some length.

Following argument of counsel decision was reserved and counsel was given until August first to file additional affidavits.

$75,000 Suit.

Frank E. Graves and King Jazz, Inc., seek to recover $75,000 from famous Paul Whiteman for alleged damages which it is claimed the Albany orchestra has suffered since 1925. Graves for a time has conducted a jazz orchestra and became known as King Jazz. This name became so popular among dance fans that he abandoned his own name so far as his orchestra was concerned and during the past few years he alleges his organization has gained a wide reputation under the name King Jazz and His Orchestra. He claims that this has gone so far as to have people who know him by reputation call him King Jazz on the streets instead of by his name of Graves. His reputation as King Jazz he alleges had extended through New York, Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Pennsylvania and Ohio as well as into Canada where he is known, not by his own name but as King Jazz. This reputation he alleges had been built up from back in 1915 to the present date. He alleges that in 1915 when he first adopted the name King Jazz he was the first to use the term. As time went by he became known by that term until he finally abandoned his name and at present many people do not know his real name.

Counsel for plaintiff stated that Paul Whiteman had taken up jazz music prior to the war when that type of music was sweeping the country but the war cut short that type of music and it was not until after the war that Whiteman again resumed this type of music. In the meantime Graves had been using the name of King Jazz and continued to use it.

Placed Ad in Paper.

In 1925 when Whiteman played an engagement in Albany counsel stated it was Whiteman and His Band. At that time Graves caused to be placed in a newspaper as an advertisement which read "Congratulations to Paul Whiteman and His Band from King Jazz and His Orchestra." This plaintiff claims served as the first public notice to Whiteman that the name King Jazz was being used by Graves, although he had been using the name for years prior to 1925.

It was in 1930 that Graves complains first of having been damaged by reason of Whiteman being referred to as the King of Jazz. During that year a picture produced by "Universal Films and known as 'King of Jazz' played in Albany. This picture showed Paul Whiteman as a feature. Graves alleges that after that many people made the accusation that he was copying or following Paul Whiteman in the use of the term.

At the time the film was advertised in Albany Graves sought to restrain its showing on the grounds that its showing would injure his reputation which he had built up over a period of some 17 years as "King Jazz." However a settlement was made in the action which was brought under the name of King Jazz and His Orchestra, Inc., a name which had been adopted previously by Graves. It was the contention then that the showing of the picture would ruin King Jazz. After settlement the film was shown but in a release given the Universal Films Graves reserved the right to sue anyone else for using a term similar to the one which he claimed he had the right to.

It was claimed by counsel for Whiteman that this act in permitting the showing of the picture after a money settlement had been made was the same as sanctioning the use of the term by Whiteman himself. It was this film that had much to do with making Paul Whiteman known throughout the world as the King of Jazz. Counsel for Whiteman referred to publicity clippings, phonograph records and other things back as far as 1923 and before in which Whiteman had been referred to as the King of Jazz. This was before Graves became incorporated as King Jazz and His Orchestra, Inc.

Several large volumes of clippings were offered in which many referred to Paul Whiteman as the King of Jazz. In 1925 when Whiteman appeared in Albany he was billed as Paul Whiteman and His Band but in 1926 Graves claims that the term King of Jazz had been applied to Whiteman to such an extent that it began to affect his bookings and many people were of the opinion that Graves was imitating Whiteman. He alleges that contracts were cancelled. Graves claims now that he has been deprived of a name which he

Congress to Adjourn After Seven Months Session of Business

Washington, July 16 (AP).—Congress swept today to the adjournment point, leaving behind an historic record of the achievement and conflict that naturally accompany the ventures of a Democratic government into new fields.

The more than seven months session was the longest in 16 years. Its problems from the beginning last December 7 were as grave as any that ever confronted the federal legislative branch except possibly in war times.

During the early months, politics were minimized. Written on the statute books then were laws to postpone for a year the $270,000,000 debt payments owed the United States by foreign nations; to create the huge Reconstruction Finance Corporation; liberalize banking restrictions; levy $1,118,500,000 in new taxes; give federal aid to the needy; abolish "lame duck" sessions.

Then economy legislation to balance the budget became pressing.

Political Storm.

The house launched a $250,000,000 bill which was cut to less than half that sum before it passed. The political storm broke. President Hoover criticized congress for being unwilling to make bigger savings and Democrats retorting that his cabinet members and appointees were responsible. About this time, the Democrats squeezed through a tariff bill which the President quickly vetoed. Shortly thereafter, Speaker Garner, not yet the Democratic vice presidential nominee, launched his $2,000,000,000 relief bill.

That went through Congress despite presidential assertions that it was "pork barrel" and answers that it was "bread basket." Another veto stopped this bill, and Congress was forced to draft the second.

Campaign Material.

But Democrats intend to use the vetoed bill as additional campaign ammunition of which Republicans say they are not afraid. Another point that will be emphasized in the plea for votes will be Speaker Garner's insistence that loans from the Reconstruction Corporation's $3,800,000,000 fund should be published monthly. President Hoover's assertion is that this would be harmful.

Congress, informed that another veto would meet cash payment of the bonus, turned it down despite pressure. With veterans massed outside, the Senate once voted against a bill with that purpose and already approved by the House. Continued marching of bonus seekers outside the capitol in the last days of the session failed to put the bonus through.

The veterans' siege, itself, was historic. Not since the Capitol was moved from Philadelphia to Washington has there been such a demonstration.

Prohibition Question.

Prohibition drew more attention. All attempts to legalize and tax beer and repeal the Eighteenth Amendment were rejected in both Houses several times. Because of the party platforms, this question was pushed more toward the end of the session, but the effect of these efforts was the same.

About 50 House members and a couple of senators file out of the legislative ranks, defeated in primaries. Others were considerably worried over remaining preliminary as well as final votes.

Most of them worked hard. Dr. George Calver, House physician, blamed several deaths on overwork and pleaded with members to slow down. The end of the seventy-second Congress itself doesn't come until March 4, 1933, but the mortality rate among the 435 representatives and 96 senators already approaches a record.

Those who do continue to serve, though, will draw 10 per cent less pay, a cut they voted for themselves in the economy campaign. President Hoover, whose salary could not be reduced by Congress, just yesterday announced he would return $15,000 of his $75,000 to the treasury. He ruled that cabinet members should take 15 per cent less, along with the speaker and vice president.

Police Action Halted Rush of "Bonus Army"

Washington, July 16 (AP).—A rush toward the capitol by the throng of veterans demanding the bonus, threatened disorder as congress met today for its last session, but quick police action calmed the situation.

Walter W. Waters, leader of the main body of ex-soldiers, was held under arrest a short time until he and his aides agreed to do their best to keep their followers from massing at the capitol doors, once they were dispersed.

Pelham D. Glassford, police chief, then undertook to get the somewhat turbulent crowd in a cheerful frame of mind—preparatory to having them go back.

An army nurse and men from the veterans' ranks led in song, topping off for the time the yelling and jeering that marked the first run across the capitol plaza.

City Court Quiet Today.

There were no cases before Judge Bernard A. Culliton this morning in city court. Hubert W. Ryan of New York, arrested Friday on a traffic violation, forfeited $5 bail.

Dry Organizations Favor President as Better Candidate

Prohibitionists Want Candidate Who Believes "Prohibition Ought to Be a Law"—Favor Hoover and Curtis Ticket.

Washington, July 16 (AP).—The national prohibition board of strategy wants dries to support candidates who believe "prohibition ought to be the law" but has not obtained unanimous support from its ranks for a resume to show President Hoover's attitude.

The recommendation, also urging opposition to modification or repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act, is contained in a summary of campaign policy drawn up by a sub-committee and approved by the board yesterday.

Records Attached.

The resume of the records of Mr. Hoover and Governor Roosevelt was attached, based on quoted statements. It was a belief that the Hoover summary made the president drier than he is, said D. Leigh Colvin, national chairman of the Prohibition Party, that made him resign from the board last yesterday.

The board's resume quoted, among other things, President Hoover's acceptance speech of 1928 in which he said "I do not favor repeal of the eighteenth amendment"; his message in 1931 accompanying the Wickham report when he told congress it was his "duty" to "enforce the law." The review then added:

"During the presidency of Mr. Hoover, federal enforcement of the prohibition laws has steadily advanced and has attained a higher degree of efficiency than in any other period since adoption of the Eighteenth amendment."

Roosevelt Avowed Wet.

It emphasized Roosevelt's acceptance speech in Chicago when he said: "This convention wants repeal. Your candidate wants repeal. I say to you now that from this date the Eighteenth amendment is doomed."

It said Vice-President Curtis had announced no change from his 1928 position: "I am opposed to a policy which allows any state to determine for itself the alcoholic content of beverages."

It recalled this statement by Speaker Garner just before the Democratic convention which nominated him for the vice-presidency: "When the prohibition amendment was proposed, I as a member of congress, voted against it. I have never believed it sound or workable and it should be repealed."

It urged the people "to meet unwaveringly the serious obligation which has been thrust upon them in the coming election."

Marvin Boomed for Post of Governor

Syracuse, N. Y., July 16 (AP).—Rolland B. Marvin, "wet" mayor of Syracuse, today had the implied support of one of the most powerful dries in the state, William H. Hill, for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Hill, President Hoover's manager in New York in 1928, said last night, "I consider Mayor Marvin of Syracuse one of the outstanding candidates for governor of our Empire state." Then, without directly pledging Marvin his support, Hill praised his "efforts in connection with economy in city and state government as 'remarkable.'"

Hill added the party certainly could win this year with the right candidate, without saying definitely that he considered Marvin the "right" man.

Hill's announcement followed closely a pledge of support for Marvin, who has not yet announced his candidacy, from Senator George R. Fearon, one of the most influential upstate leaders in the party. Fearon, senate leader, like Marvin is a member of the efficient Syracuse organization.

CHARGE LATE MATCH KING WITH $50,000,000 THEFT

New York, July 16 (AP).—Charges that the late Ivar Kreuger, midas of matches, stole $50,000,000 in bonds before he put a bullet through his head, echoed today through the maze of his frenzied finances.

The Irving Trust Company, which made the charge, started action to safeguard payment of $1,500,000 in interest on the bonds and was said to plan suits to recover the securities themselves for the bankrupt International Match Corporation, a Kreuger concern.

The trust company, which is trustee in bankruptcy for the match company, obtained a temporary injunction in federal court yesterday restraining Lee, Higginson & Co., the match king's American bankers; the Chase National Bank and five Swedish banking concerns from taking steps to pay the interest to any one but the Irving Trust.

INVESTIGATORS NOT AT FAULT, IS REPORT

Washington, July 16 (AP).—Prohibition Director Woodcock today received a telegraphic report from the New York state administrator, Andrew McCampbell, saying "Investigations were not at fault" in Alexandria Bay incidents which brought several protesting telegrams to Washington.

McElroy, Rescued Flyer, Relates His Jungle Experience

Spent 17 Days Wandering in Tropical Jungle—Injured Leg Allowed Only Four Miles' Travel—Suffered Many Hardships.

Mexico City, July 16 (AP).—Little by little today, as a quivering and halting voice came back to him, Clarence McElroy, American aviator who was rescued yesterday from the deep Mexican jungle, was able to tell snatches of the horror through which he lived for 17 days.

McElroy was brought in to the little town of San Geronimo yesterday by a searching party half dead from starvation, thirst and an injured leg. He had been missing since June 27, when he took off from Vera Cruz in a plane he was flying to Honduras for delivery.

Roy Gordon, American resident of Tegucigalpa, Honduras, who was flying with him, was killed in the crash, which occurred in the midst of a terrific tropical storm.

The crash of the ship after the motor failed, left McElroy badly hurt, without food or water, with no knowledge of Spanish or of how to combat or escape the deadly perils of a tropical jungle.

Showed Great Courage.

With almost unbelievable fortitude, however, he tried to arrange the wreckage to protect the body of his companion as well as possible from the jungle beasts. This done, he made a crude attempt to dress his injured leg and then struck out for the westward, knowing the low mountain range and civilization lay beyond.

Constantly on the alert to escape snakes, wild beasts and disease, and fighting off tropical insects, McElroy crawled his painful way through the tangled thick.

Yes so handicapped was he that he estimates he only covered four miles in nearly three weeks of crawling. The jungle at that point is well-nigh impassable and he had no tools to cut through.

Although he said he believed the wreckage was only four miles distant from where he was found, searching parties had not located it after a full day of looking. The volunteer expedition pushed on however, although members said there was no hope of recovering Gordon's body, which probably long since had been carried away by wild beasts.

Offered Reward.

One of McElroy's first acts last night as he slowly regained his voice was to offer a generous reward to Melardo Enriquez, the Indian hillman who stumbled over his exhausted body in the jungle late Thursday and saved his life. He had reached the limit of his endurance, he said, and he believed death was close at hand.

He then asked that his mother be notified by cable.

Today he was resting well in the home of Mayor Humberto L. Pineda. The physician in attendance said he would recover but that it would take a long time.

His escape was the sole conversation today of the natives of the small isthmus town. They marveled at the American's desperate and successful battle against the jungle perils and terrors.

McElroy's first agonized request, made by signs, was for water. He was given milk and cheese by a strict diet by Dr. Hernandez. He constantly called for more water.

The aviator said that he would have died of thirst except that he was able to catch small quantities of rain water during the frequent tropical downpours. He obtained some nourishment from fruits, but he was in constant fear he would select some poisonous fruit.

The Pan-American Airways has offered to stop a plane at San Geronimo Sunday afternoon to pick up McElroy and bring him to Mexico City that night for hospitalization and better medical care. The offer probably will be accepted if he can be moved that soon.

Debt Questions Get Attention

Paris, July 16 (AP).—The storm raised abroad by the report of Premier Herriot's statement on the connection of the Post-Lausanne accord with Great Britain and American war debts continued to preoccupy official circles today in spite of an official announcement yesterday intended to clarify the situation.

Yesterday's statement, officially sponsored and followed by one day President Hoover's letter to Senator Borah declaring the United States would not be influenced on the debt question by any united front in Europe, emphasized that it was far from the intention of France to form such a front.

Any assertion that the recent Franco-British accord would restrict Great Britain in making new arrangements for war debt payments to the United States was palpably absurd, it said.

WOULD REDUCE BONDS' LOAN RATE OF INTEREST

Washington, July 16 (AP).—The Senate today sent to the White House a bill reducing the interest rate on Veterans' bonus certificates loans from 4 and a half to three and one half per cent and permitting loans on certificates less than two years old.

Decision Reserved In Action of Banks Against Kingston

Democratic Administration Alleges Certain Certificates of Indebtedness are Illegal—Banks Seek to Recover $135,000.

Albany, July 16.—Motion for summary judgment against the City of Kingston was made by five banks which brought actions for sums totaling $135,000 on five certificates of indebtedness yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Staley in Albany.

The notes were issued by city officials last year during the administration of Former Mayor E. J. Dempsey to pay overdrafts of the Board of Public Works, Board of Public Welfare, Board of Health and to raise funds to pay "obligations incurred by the boards of current expenses and maintenance after their appropriations had been depleted," according to papers of counsel.

The present Democratic city administration, headed by Mayor Eugene H. Carey, has repudiated the certificates, contending that their issuance and sale was illegal and in violation of the city charter and of statutes.

Corporation Counsel Chris J. Flanagan appeared in opposition to the motion, requesting that the cases be allowed to take the regular course of trial by jury, asserting that he was willing to stipulate that the trial be set down for October.

The suits are brought by the Rondout Savings Bank, $25,000; the First National Bank of Rondout, $20,000; Ulster County Savings Institution, $40,000; State of New York National Bank, $20,000; Kingston Savings Bank, $25,000. Counsel for these institutions are Philip Elting, prominent Ulster County Republican leader, H. H. Flemming and V. B. Van Wageningen.

After more than two hours of argument Justice Staley reserved decision.

Alexandria Bay Scene of Difference

Alexandria Bay, N. Y., July 16 (AP).—Fearing "possible death and bloodshed" within the next few hours, Alexandria Bay waited today for the beginning of an investigation into a situation which has caused injury to two Federal prohibition agents and three residents of this village in the last few days.

Andrew McCampbell, Federal prohibition administrator for New York state, was reported proceeding to Alexandria Bay under direct orders from Washington to discover the cause of hard feeling over enforcement methods here.

Last Tuesday a mob surrounded a raided establishment, beat two prohibition agents and silt the tires in their automobile.

Thursday night a man and a woman were struck and injured by an automobile as agents drove away from a raid, and Agent Burke Bornemann of Syracuse was arrested. A stone flung at the agents struck and injured a boy bicyclist.

G. J. Savage, secretary of the chamber of commerce, yesterday wired Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills, Commissioner Amos W. Woodcock, head of the prohibition service; Senators Royal S. Copeland and Robert F. Wagner, and Representatives Bernhard H. Snell and Francis D. Culkin.

"Would request all possible efforts on your part," Savage telegraphed. "To secure enforcement of nation's laws in manner suitable to the dignity of the government and according to the Constitution of the United States and the Bill of Rights."

"Serious situation resulting in possible death and bloodshed will result inside of 48 hours if something is not done."

ROOSEVELT SAILS BOAT ON FINAL PART OF TRIP

Marblehead, Mass., July 16 (AP).—With Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt at the helm, the Myth II weighed anchor today on the final hitch of its cruise along the New England coast to Portsmouth, N. H.

The Democratic nominee and his sons, who spent the night aboard their craft, anchored among the yachts in the harbor of this old sailing port, expected today to continue on to Gloucester and Portsmouth in the hope of reaching the New Hampshire port sometime late today or tonight.

The sky again was clear and the sun sparkled on the waters of the cove as they plied on all the canvas the yawl would carry in an effort to get full advantage of the light air that was stirring. The Marblehead yachtsmen predicted it would be late at night, even if the breeze held out, before the Myth II would reach port, and that it might not be able to make Portsmouth unless the wind picked up.

Trying to Dry the Gases.

Hyman Yankelovich was arrested by Kingston prohibition agents Friday, who seized alleged whiskey, colored whiskey and wine at 295 Broadway, Monticello. The agents also visited the premises at 435 Main street, Poughkeepsie and arrested Harold Malone, seizing alleged whiskey, gin and beer.

Death Of Prisoner After Questioning Is Cause of Inquiry

Minneapolis, N. Y., July 14 (AP).—Whether a "third degree" killed Hyman Stark, 20-year-old prisoner who died at police headquarters after eight hours' questioning, was the subject of vigorous inquiry today.

Stark, who was accused of beating a detective's elderly mother almost to death in a robbery, died last night under mysterious circumstances. Police refused any details.

Inspector Frank McCahill said he was unable to give the cause of the youth's death until he received an autopsy report.

"If, however, I find that the prisoner died as a result of any assault or attack by members of my department, you may rest assured," he said, "that I will take departmental action."

Other police would say only that the matter was in the hands of Assistant District Attorney Martin W. Littlejohn, Jr., who questioned the whole homicide squad at length. He declined to comment. It was not learned whether Detective Joseph Hyzenzky, the man whose mother was beaten, was present during the grilling of the youth.

Sought Valuables.

Four youths whom the police called thugs from Manhattan's East Side, broke into the Roslyn home of Mrs. Valeria Hyzenzky, 64, yesterday. She was sitting in a rocking chair. One of the men drew a gun and said: "Give us all the valuables you've got."

When she protested she had nothing but $4 and some change, another of the intruders knocked her to the floor, then all four kicked and cuffed her into unconsciousness.

They seized a cheap ring from a drawer, scooped up the small amount of change and fled in an automobile. Mrs. Hyzenzky recovered consciousness long enough to stagger to a telephone and call Nassau county police headquarters, where her son is attached to the homicide squad. Then she collapsed.

Meanwhile her screams had aroused neighbors who saw the men scramble into the car. One of the neighbors took the license number and a police alarm was sent out. Fifteen minutes later Motorcycle Patrolman John Symanski, a friend of the detective whose mother was beaten, spotted a car with four youthful occupants. He pulled his gun, forced them to drive to police headquarters and enter with their hands above their heads. "All four, police said, admitted entering the woman's home, but denied beating her."

Identified Men.

At the hospital Mrs. Hyzenzky identified Stark, detectives declare, as the man who knocked her down. She pointed out Iose Stein, 19, as the one who waved a gun over her head. The other two gave their names as Phil Cacic, 17, and Alexander Drangel, 23.

The first indication that anything had gone amiss at police headquarters came when a physician was summoned. He was followed quickly by a police surgeon and the coroner.

The building was cleared of all except police or county officials and it was not until after midnight that Inspector McCahill admitted the prisoner had died. Stark, he said, was a former inmate of Elmira State Penitentiary and was a narcotic addict.

Mrs. Hyzenzky's condition is critical.

A fifth man was arrested early today in New York city for complicity in the crime. He described himself as Nicholas Baricavac, 43, a boiler-maker, and was picked up on information supplied by Nassau county police. Police charged he was the "finger man" for the actual holdup men and on Tuesday drove three men to Syosset, pointed out Mrs. Hyzenzky's home and told them she had considerable money hidden in the house.

Police said Baricavac denied that he had suggested the robbery to anyone. He admitted he drove three men to Syosset Tuesday, but said the trip was an expedition to seek burial whiskey.

Kingston Has Lowest Infant Mortality

Governor Roosevelt states that while there should be a substantial reduction in the expense of many state and municipal departments, there should not be any in the department of health and that health conditions in this state and its municipalities show a higher percentage of general welfare than anywhere in the civilized world of proportionate population. He attributes it to the high character, ability and conscientious devotion to duty of the members of the state and municipal boards of health.

The rate of infant mortality is lower in Kingston than in any city of similar population in the United States. This largely is due to the ceaseless and vigilant bacteriological examinations of our milk supply. The bacteriological laboratory reported 725 bacteriological examinations including milk during the month of June, and that is upwards twenty-four for each day.

Bahl Arrested.

Benjamin Bahl was arrested at Margareville Friday by Trooper McGarvey on a bench warrant, charging failure to provide for minor children, and was committed to the Ulster county jail.

Busy Special Term Reveals Variety of Cases Before Judge

Judge Loughran Hears Number of Actions in Long Session of Supreme Court Friday.

One of the busiest special terms ever held in this county was presided over by Supreme Court Judge John T. Loughran Friday when the regular July special term was held. Convening at 10 o'clock the court ran on until 2:30 o'clock without an adjournment. At that time a half hour recess was taken and the court reconvened at 3 o'clock and it was after 5 o'clock before the afternoon adjournment. Many matters came up for argument. The term was marked by the large number of attorneys from the Albany district who came to present matters to the local court.

Action in Libel.

Among the interesting matters was a motion to change the place of trial of an action in libel brought by Mrs. Emily Ordemann Kelly against The Beacon News Company, Inc., publishers of the Beacon News in Dutchess county, to recover $50,000 damages for an alleged libel on her character through an article which was published in the newspaper at the time she sought a divorce from her husband. The motion to change the place of trial was made on the grounds that a fair and impartial trial could not be had in Dutchess county where it was alleged the Beacon News has a wide circulation and is influential. The action for $50,000 was originally brought in Columbia county and was later transferred to Dutchess county on the grounds that none of the parties to the action resided in Columbia county. Both parties are residents of Dutchess county. It is now sought to have the case transferred back to Columbia county because plaintiff alleges it will be impossible to secure an impartial trial in Dutchess county.

The $50,000 action grows out of the publication in the Beacon News on May 14, 1932, of an article which according to the papers filed in the case referred to Mrs. Kelly as "Bedford Inn Hostess asks for a Divorce." Mrs. Kelly objects to the reference and claims that the word "hostess" implies some evil meaning. David H. Hittner appeared in support of the motion to transfer the action to Columbia county. He stated that the circulation of the paper was 3,200 copies widely circulated throughout the county of Dutchess and that the paper had a great influence on the people. He alleged that Judge J. Gordon Flanagan, county judge and the county persons who goes over the county jury list had once been counsel for the defendant, also that John E. Mack, who appears as counsel of record now for the defendant was widely known in Dutchess county and that recently the Beacon News "hoomed" John E. Mack in an editorial for governor. Edward A. Conger appeared as counsel for the defendant.

Great Influence.

Counsel for plaintiff stated that the Beacon News had great influence in Dutchess county and that an employee who had become involved in trouble was not indicted "because the District Attorney was praised in the paper." He charged that the paper had been "knocking" the place of employment of Mrs. Kelly, Bedford Inn, operated by Major Robert A. Kent, Jr., and that it would be impossible to secure an impartial jury, free from the influence of the newspaper.

Numerous affidavits were filed charging the "influence" of the paper.

Among the affidavits filed was one by Major Kent, proprietor of the Inn.

A letter from husband of plaintiff which was written at the time of the divorce action was included in the papers submitted by the defendant company and in that letter Mr. Kelly stated that he had lived with Mrs. Kelly four years before their marriage. The letter charged that Mrs. Kelly left her husband shortly after marriage. Counsel for the Beacon News argued that the attack made on the jury system of Dutchess county was unfair and that the Beacon News had but little influence in the county of Dutchess and that the principal circulation was in Beacon and that there was no justification of the charge that it would be impossible to have a fair and impartial trial in Dutchess county. It is denied that the reference to Mrs. Kelly in the article printed was of such a nature as to injure her reputation and character.

Judge Loughran after listening to argument of counsel took papers and reserved decision.

Divorce Action.

Application was made to open an interlocutory decree of divorce granted by Judge Winschell of Orange county in an action brought by Raymond L. Wright against Ella M. Wright of Highland. Henry Hamner appeared for plaintiff and George Rusk of Rusk & Rusk appeared for defendant. The interlocutory decree becomes final on July 20 and it was stipulated that the final decree be stayed until the determination of the present action. Counsel for defendant asked that the interlocutory decree be opened and that the matter be tried in Ulster county. Defendant seeks to defend the action. The decree was granted April 20, 1932. Parties were married at Newburgh in January of 1907. Decision reserved.

Decision was reserved in an application for change of place of trial of the action brought by George L. Croginisky against Abe Rabinowitch.

Water TB Hospital Home For Nurses Is Almost Completed

There is much rejoicing at the Water County Tuberculosis Hospital, the part of the nurses and those waiting list of patients over the fact that the beautiful Colonial style home for the hospital nurses is almost completed and ready for occupancy.

This nurses' home, the gift of Mrs. George Washburn who contributed to its erection as a memorial to her father, William H. Hutton, is a large, best described by that word "complete", for that it what it is, to be located where it has the most complete view of the entire Shawangunk, Fishkill and Dutchess mountains of any location in the entire county. And every practical and decorative feature inside the building is as complete as the surroundings.

The pretty and genuinely Colonial building is located on the western side of the hospital property. It is built of brick and hollow tile, similar to the hospital itself and has a special brick facing from the Hutton family's brickyard known as "Hutton's".

The architects are Teller and Harrison and the contractors are as follows: General contractor, Lyman J. Schoonmaker; plumbing contractor, Brown and Dressel; heating contractor, Weber and Walter.

Approaching the building at the front, one is immediately pleased with the detail of the architecture even in the detail of the fan-topped door and tiny side windows. The driveway that leads out of the hall-way is equally attractive with its sidewalks of oak and its mahogany "goose-neck" banister railing. One passes directly into the hallway that gives one, through the doorway into the library, the first glimpse of the distant mountains.

To the left of the entrance is the spacious and most attractive living room. All of the rooms were practically furnished when, specially inspected. The living room with each window framing a marvelous "landscape" picture; its wide fireplace and simple Colonial mantel is furnished with very comfortable and appropriately upholstered over-stuffed furniture and odd Colonial chairs and harmonizing rugs. At the end of the front entrance is the beautiful library with its built-in bookshelves and wicker furniture. Here French doors open onto a porch all furnished and having a commanding view. In fact, each particular view seems lovelier than the one last looked at.

In the hallways, living room and library, in fact throughout the home, all windows have ruffled curtains of ivory point d'esprit.

There are two bedrooms on this floor and one bath, completely furnished even to the shower and long mirror. One of the rooms has Colonial furniture of old ivory color, the other mahogany. Every bedroom has a very comfortable and artistically upholstered with Colonial chairs, boudoir chair and other necessary furniture. On the table in each room is a pretty little spinning-wheel which carries an electric lamp with a "George and Martha Washington" shade. There are pretty rugs in each room and a commodious and perfectly equipped closet. Opening from the hallways are to be found linen closets, a large closet for suit cases, etc., etc.

As one goes higher up in the home, the views become more extensive and lovely from the windows of each and every room. There are four rooms and two baths on the second floor, furnished in old ivory, mahogany, maple and apple green furniture and having rugs and lamps similar to those on the first and top floors.

There are two fine double rooms on the top floor and one small room which will be for an extra nurse when needed. There is a bath. One noteworthy feature of this floor, is that though it is nearest the roof and has been inspected on a hot afternoon, it has been so protected overhead above the ceiling that the heat there is no greater than on the two lower floors.

Going back downstairs, one enters the roomy and attractively furnished reception room where the nurses may enjoy social affairs of their own and adjoining it is a completely furnished kitchenette, entirely up to date as to its equipment.

One steps out of the recreation room at the rear upon a flag-floored screened-in porch with porch furniture and still another wonderful view, perhaps more intimate in its beauty than those seen from the upper rooms.

Special mention should also be made of the Colonial electric light fixtures fitting perfectly into the Colonial picture in which they are hung.

On this lower floor is the heating plant and the hot-water plant.

The architects and contractors have kept in mind the building of a real home, not an institution, and they have succeeded completely in carrying out that idea. Their efforts have been crowned by those of

Dr. Mary Gage-Day and Mrs. Frederick Holcomb, comprising the furnishings committee, who have so charmingly furnished the rooms with the funds from the Water County Committee on Tuberculosis and Public Health.

Just as soon as the nurses take up their quarters in their new home the rooms that they are now occupying at the hospital will be liberated for the patients now waiting admittance to the hospital.

When it is considered just what the duties of nurses in tuberculosis hospitals consist of—and in the present instance all of the nurses are cheerfully playing the tiring part of "elevators" at the hospital, until that much-needed equipment is supplied—it is a matter of peculiar congratulation that they will so soon be comfortably and delightfully domiciled in the ideal new "William H. Hutton Memorial Home."

SILVER SPOON RESULTED IN LARGE CATCH OF FISH

There comes a story of a Woodland Valley fisherman who filled his basket with fine trout, some reported to have run as high as 20 inches in length with a silver spoon. It is not claimed that the spoon was the direct agent used in making the big catch, however. It seems that the fisherman in question had been trying in vain the lure of a varied assortment of flies and decided to try his luck with the lowly angleworm. He visited a test which he saw on a nearby hill and asked for the loan of a shovel to dig some bait. The lady in charge had no shovel, but obligingly loaned a silver spoon. The loan was accepted, a supply of worms was secured and the big catch followed.

MODENA

Modena, July 16—A group of young men from Modena is steadily working to improve the baseball diamond, putting it in a proper condition whereon games may be played during the season.

Miss Helen Rinehart, who has been speeding some time in Long Island, returned home for the past week-end.

Roy Crosswell was a business visitor at Kingston Tuesday.

Miss Grace Davis has returned to her home in Cottekill, after spending some time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wells in this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Mason Rose of Clintonville were callers on Mr. and Mrs. Elsworth Miller during the past week.

Miss Gleanie Wager spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Vernard Wager at Plattkill.

Miss Elsie Crosswell and sister, Beatrice, of Kingston, are visiting their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Shults.

Charles B. Wright of Ireland Corners was a visitor in Modena last week.

Tenants are occupying the house of the Misses Morris, near Modena village.

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Weeks were visitors in Kingston during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Rulle Ward were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Patridge at Ardenia.

Local members of the I. O. O. F. Lodge attended a meeting at the lodge hall at Gardiner Monday evening.

News of Today In Kingston

Instead of using the U. S. mail, men are being employed to deliver bills to houses. It's because of the depression that such an arrangement has been made. This ought to employ a number of men and help the shoemakers' trade.

Uncle Sam will lose many of his extra pennies under these conditions, but then there are families that need revenue just as bad as the government.

Recently a negro was tracked down by the local police for stealing cigarettes, and was questioned about his taking orders for tobacco supplies in local stores.

When asked by the police, why on one particular morning he was taking orders without having the cigarettes to deliver, the negro replied, "Ah was takin' orders in de mornin' for cigarettes Ah was gonna steal in de afternoon."

That's the height of speculation.

There was a pickpocket down at the boat pier at Kingston Point yesterday. The local police got a call on the matter and an investigation was made but nothing could be found to form a real case.

Some gentleman said a wallet with a $10 bill in it was stolen from his pocket. He had just been buying tickets for someone and this clever fingered somebody stole his purse.

The description was vague. All that was said was that the accused man has two bandaged fingers. As to his clothes and looks nothing could be gathered. The officer sent to cover the case said he "didn't know whether to try to hold up the boat or just sink it."

There are more baggage snatchers at the boat pier now than ever before in history of the Point. They range from three to six feet in height and they really take their business seriously. Everywhere one looks there is a baggage snatcher and they almost block the way of the passengers.

The police have their hands full with these boys. Officers chase them constantly but they're just like flies. They all go in the other direction and start working from that end.

It was estimated yesterday that the snatchers nearly equalled the number of passengers that got on the boat.

There's no such a thing as tossing coins for the boys to scramble for on the dock either. Maybe it's just as well, for people might jump off the boat or smother the one throwing the coins.

That was a great sport years back. At every pier a number of boys would be in the river swimming by the dock and the people would toss coins in the water and the boys would dive for them.

Who is the "King of Jazz?"

An action against Paul Whiteman was aired in Supreme court here Friday on a charge that he was assuming, illegally, the title of "King of Jazz." Frank E. Graves from Albany claims he was the original "King of Jazz."

Society Notes

Dec-Maxim.

Mrs. Lillian Durban Maxim, widow of Hudson Maxim, famous inventor, scientist, author and explosive expert, was married to Michael F. Dee, an attorney of New York city and Grand View, Rockland county, Thursday afternoon in the Paulist Fathers Church, West Fifty-ninth street, by the Rev. Peter E. Hoey. The bride had Mrs. James E. Winterbottom for her only attendant. Supreme Court Justice John T. Loughran was best man for Mr. Dee. The couple left for a motor tour of New York state. They will pass the remainder of the summer at Lake Hopatcong. Mrs. Dee's first marriage took place in 1896. She is the daughter of the Rev. William Durban of London, England. Her first husband achieved world-wide fame for his inventions and experiments with explosives. Mr. Dee, a member of the law firm of Walker and Warren, is a former dean of the Fordham Law School. Professor Dee has a number of acquaintances in Kingston, having been a guest of Judge John T. Loughran here on several occasions.

About the Folks

Lillian May Weeks of 75 Prospect street is spending a six weeks' vacation at the Y. W. C. A. camp at Camp Tapawingo, Bear Mountain.

Anna Helen Brogan was operated on for appendicitis at the Benedictine Hospital. Her many friends will be glad to hear she is improving nicely under the care of Dr. O'Connor.

Miss Elizabeth Hartley of the clerical force at the prohibition office, has been confined to her home at 14 Main street for the past week by illness.

WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR THE WEEK BEGINNING MONDAY

North and Middle Atlantic States: Generally fair weather and near normal temperature except some probability of local showers and slightly warmer middle of week.

Malcolm and His Rubbers

By JANE OSBORN

A boy Malcolm Greeley had been the youngest one in his set to be allowed a latch key. Moreover the day he was sixteen he was given a small runabout and permission to get a license to drive. In his suite of two rooms on the third floor of his aunt's house in Tinton he was permitted always to dispense indefinite hospitality to any of the boys he chose. It seemed to Malcolm's friends as if he was certainly lucky in living there with his two maiden aunts, and to most of the groups in the neighborhood it seemed as if those same maiden aunts would undoubtedly ruin their charge with their indulgence. Malcolm, on leaving college, had put some of his patrimony in a certain well-established contracting concern in Gifford, a booming city an hour's ride from Tinton, and was as the neighbors said, "Getting on splendidly."

But Malcolm suffered and always had suffered a deep and incessant irritation. He appreciated his aunts' kindness, he regarded them with real affection, but on rainy mornings or when even a single cloud appeared in the sky Aunt Susan would say: "Malcolm, dear, remember your rubbers." This while he was eating breakfast; and lest he might slip away without them Aunt Clara would be standing in the hall, ready with Malcolm's rubbers and umbrella—raincoat, too, if the sky dripped or was really overcast.

Malcolm bore it because really there was nothing else to do. It was during an extremely wet April that Malcolm came to the conclusion that he'd go to live by himself in Gifford. He'd give as his excuse that business now required his residence there, but really in his heart he knew that he was going to do that he could go rubberless and umbrellaless when he chose.

So Malcolm Greeley set himself up in bachelor apartments in Gifford. In time he grew lonely. He could not even go to spend holidays with his aunts, who were now idling their time in Italy or southern France. Having always been used to the most comfortable home atmosphere and the society of two women who were in almost all respects so agreeable, Malcolm felt his loneliness keenly. Then along came Dora Hilton, whom Malcolm met at a dance in Gifford and all at once it flashed through Malcolm's mind that this starchy-eyed young lady—and she alone—could fill the void in a lonely heart produced by his aunts' absence.

It was in April and Malcolm and Dora were sitting in a sequestered spot on the veranda of Gifford's new country clubhouse.

Malcolm made the usual preliminaries about having something that was very hard to say yet something that to him was very important, and the starchy-eyed girl made the usual but not quite truthful remarks about not having an idea what it could be. Then Malcolm proposed and Dora sat looking pensive and very pretty for full two minutes so that it might appear that she was considering a proposition that had never entered her head before and then she pouted just a little—a kiss-provoking pout it was—and said she thought she'd accept.

That night Malcolm wrote to his aunts and told them the glad news, giving Dora's address so that they might write to her and say the polite little things that good form demanded under the circumstances. The next morning the air was filled with a damp mist that threatened rain. But Malcolm was too joyous even to notice the weather. Martha, his old colored housekeeper, had breakfast ready for him as usual at eight and at half past he would leave for the office. Just five minutes after eight the telephone rang. Malcolm seized the receiver and recognized Dora's voice. For a terrifying second or so he was afraid that she wanted to tell him that she had reconsidered what she had said the night before and that after all he had better not get the ring he had spoken about. But then, came the voice:

"Malcolm, dear, I know it isn't very conventional to call you at your apartment so early in the morning, but Malcolm, dear, it looks like rain—and I wanted to remind you to wear your rubbers. You know now that we're engaged, I'm going to take such good care of you."

"You darling," breathed Malcolm over the telephone.

A month later the letter from Malcolm's aunts reached Dora. "It was such a lovely letter," Dora told him as she sat beside him in the little roadster that he told Dora he had bought for himself as an engagement present. "And those darling aunts asked me for their sakes to be sure and see that you carried your umbrella when it rained, and that you wore your rubbers even when it didn't rain if the ground was damp. And I was so pleased, because I'd already made up my mind that I was going to take good care of you."

Trade War Faces England And Irish

London, July 16 (AP)—A bitter trade war threatened relations between the Irish Free State and Great Britain today after failure of President Eamon de Valera of the Free State and Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald to agree on a plan for settling the land annuities controversy.

De Valera and the prime minister spent several hours in conference yesterday in an effort to agree upon a plan proposed by William Norton, president of the Free State Labor party. But last night de Valera returned to Dublin, the attempt unsuccessful.

In the meantime the British special tariff duties were being levied on imports from the free state, with the result that trade was at a standstill. The Free State's retaliatory tariff measure, which passed the Dail Eirann yesterday, is ready to go to the Senate Monday.

When a Paris Label Is Nothing to Brag About

A recent passage from Europe on one of the big liners was marked by an attractive number of frocks and coats worn by passengers, a group of which is sketched.

At extreme left is a black rough crepe frock, with short-waisted bodice attached to the skirt by large buttons and buttonholes; the single large rever is fine white lace and net; the hat illustrates the vogue abroad of the fabric sailor type, in this instance of white rough crepe.

A bright navy blue woolen coat has an amusing neckline finish of red cotton to match the stitched cotton breton sailor and the red-and-white striped linen belt. The extended shoulders over the puffed sleeves are interest to the silhouette.

A black soft woolen frock of simple design adds a necklace of white cotton pique flowers, worn close to the neck, with bracelets of the same flowers on the long sleeves; white peau d'ange forms the beret.

The dolman lines of a tiny jacket are interesting in a navy blue rough crepe costume, featuring wrap-around skirt and crepe blouse of white dotted in navy.

Another version of wrap-around styling in dresses is seen in a black sheer wool model, with side-closed bodice finished with white orrandie pleated jabot, and red collar and buttons; the girdle is a twisted fabric one. Red stitched crepe forms the hat.

The particular feature of a black wool crepe frock, with epaulets ruffled shoulders, is the white linen trim, including a high-necked vestee with embroidered monogram in red.

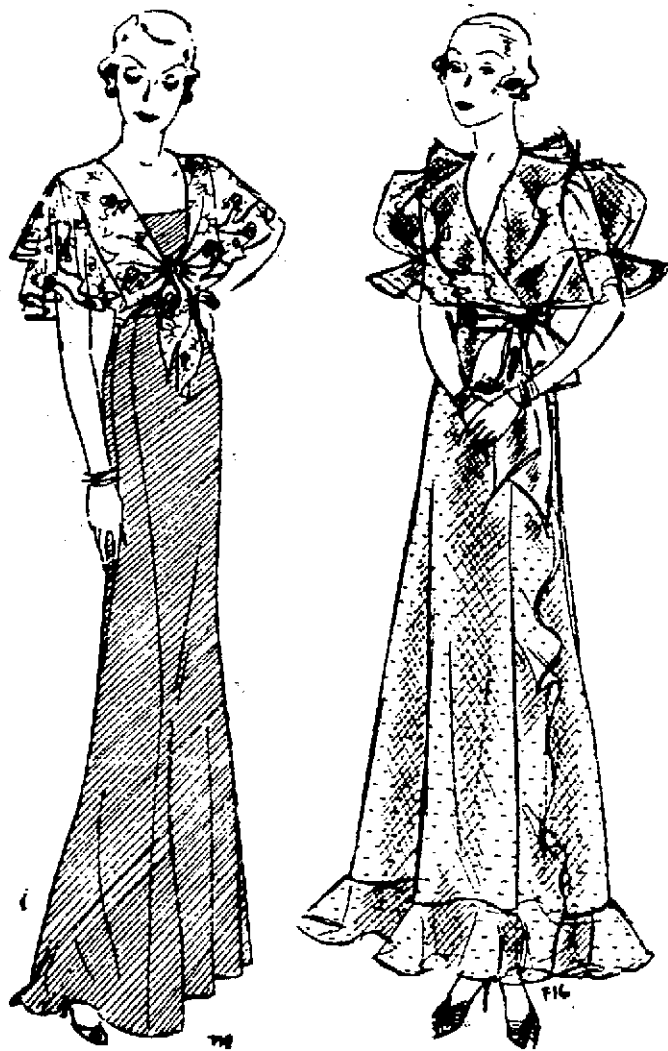

A navy wool voile dress, at extreme right, favors tucked trimming, with a scarf with woven white dots.

At Home—and Coolly Garbed

(Copyright, 1932, by Fairchild)

Left—A plain slip-over bodice of tea rose triple sheer crepe in the peach point d'esprit used for a jacket in a delicately printed triple chiffon. The puff sleeves, flounce sheer featuring tones of beige, tea trim and wide satin sash are noteworthy.

Tucks and Handwork Supply Trimming Details

New York—Possibly you have noticed how much tucking is being used just now. Sheer summer dresses, especially black chiffon, are elaborately tucked, and so are many other types. An entire frock is sometimes covered with widely spaced tucks. Then again, the tucks may be only incidental. One notices that, in many of the better-grade dresses, trimmings result from the handling of the material rather than from additional "trimming."

In the model sketched, effective use is made of cartridge pleats, the puff sleeves being connected with the dropped shoulder by this interesting treatment. The model is both demure and extreme, which seems like a paradox, but judge for yourself.

Belts have been gaining width and acquiring rather formidable-looking buckles. Buttons, as we know, have returned and are not to be ignored when one is planning new clothes.

If necklines are to be high, as shown, or even higher, as threatened, it behooves us to look to the brooch that will fasten them. Brooches are larger and are naturally inclined toward Victorian patterns, although one may wave all this aside and fasten one's collar with one of the indispensable jeweled clips, worn either singly or in pairs.

The great activity noted around neckwear counters in our leading shops proves the interest women feel in detachable neck fixings. This revived fashion is bound to outlast the summer season. At the moment, white neckwear leads, with white orrandie, white pique, white perforated linen or even white felt being chosen. Almost any material that is fresh and young-looking is favored.

A dress developed in navy blue lightweight woolen. It is interesting on many counts—the bloused sleeves with the fullness at the dropped shoulder line confined in cartridge-pleats, the simple bodice with white pique buttons and youthful collar, and the skirt with jaunty pockets and pleats, the pleats being released to form fullness at the hemline.

The Scarf Goes to the Seashore

Southampton, L. I.—In addition to the new look of the fabrics used for ensembles seen here, a decidedly fresh note is accented in the manner of wearing scarfs. Many of the women wearing scarfs tie them in Ascot fashion, rather loosely, away from the throat, but invariably a circle brooch of diamonds about an inch and a half in diameter.

are pleated or are shaped to cover a large portion of the bodice. With these scarfs one sees pins to hold the scarf in place. One woman wore a looped over, with both ends hanging down in front. Sometimes the ends

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

As a flattering addition to ruby or ruby-trimmed hats, tiny light ruby-colored plain mesh veils are worn.

Mrs. Agnes develops the ruby idea by wearing rubies and diamonds with a cyclamen frock. Her mannequins wear carved composition necklaces and bracelets in red.

Many all-white costumes are seen.

ROSENDALE.

Rosendale, July 15.—Harry Krom of Rifton visited his brother, Fred Krom, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter L. Bello entertained a number of relatives and friends from out of town over the week-end.

Mrs. Louis Lebert of Kingston spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Weep.

Mrs. Mary Snyder is spending a few weeks with Mrs. J. Hardenburg of Tillson.

The regular monthly meeting of the Missionary Society of the Rosendale Reformed Church was held with Mrs. Charles Bedford at the Bloomington parsonage on Wednesday, July 12, with five members being present. Work in the Kentucky mountains was studied. Next meeting will be held in October with Mrs. Ralph LeFever. After the meeting a social hour was spent.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry V. Ten Haggen entertained Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harris of Richmond Hill, L. I.

A number of young people were entertained at a party on Wednesday evening, July 13, at the Kristic Farm.

POSTAL MONEY ORDERS

HAVE BEEN INCREASED

A recent Act of Congress prescribes an increase in domestic money order fees issued by post offices, the increase being one cent for all money orders up to and including twenty dollars, the new schedule of fees becoming effective July 20.

Beginning on that date, the money order fees will be as follows: From one cent to $2.50, 6 cents. From $2.51 to $5.00, 8 cents. From $5.01 to $10.00, 11 cents. From $10.01 to $20.00, 13 cents. From $20.01 to $40.00, 15 cents. From $40.01 to $60.00, 18 cents. From $60.01 to $80.00, 20 cents. From $80.01 to $100.00, 22 cents. The stock of money order applications (Form 6991) on hand in post offices will be used until exhausted.

Momentary Madness

FREEMAN WANT ADS BRING RESULTS

Old Lady—So, your name is George Washington?
 Colored Lady—Yes, sir.
 Old Lady—Now, try to be exactly like him as he nearly as possible?
 Colored Lady—Yes, sir.
 Old Lady—Why, like George Washington?
 Colored Lady—Ah, can't help him, lak Jabez Washington, cause dat's who I is.

Old Uncle Lorenzo from out near Pennsylvania says, "De fella who thinks dat he can't am nearly as ways right."

Midnight—Nigrah, befo Ah finish-in, has yo' any question to ask?
 Gold Dust—Jes' one, big boy, jes' one. Is yo' all leavin' a wife an' a child?

Old Uncle Remus muses: "A long face in de 'amen corner' am a poor advertisement fo' any church."

Foreign Official—You cannot stay in this country.
 Traveler—Then I'll leave it.
 Foreign Official—Have you a permit to leave?

Traveler—No, sir.
 Foreign Official—Then you cannot leave. I give you just six hours to make up your mind as to what you will do.

One dear old lady in this neighborhood has been so poorly lately that she can hardly enjoy a good funeral.

Something tells me:
 That a hearse driver always gets his man.
 That a lot of fishermen are mussel bound.

That aviators never wear balloon pants.
 That a Turkish bath may be all right and necessary in Turkey.
 That a butler is always having people follow in his footsteps.

That if you are a golfer you are letting grass grow under your feet.
 That he who will kill and make up can be sure of getting the make-up.
 That a lady was entertaining the small son of a friend:
 The lady (after seeing the trouble he was having with his knife):
 Bobby, do you think you can cut your meat?

Bobby—Oh, yes, we have meat this morn'g at home, lots of times.
 Curing a guilty conscience of insomnia requires more than the pills they peddle at the drug store.
 Gladys—What is the difference between dancing and marching?
 Charles—I don't know.
 Gladys—I thought so.

The School of Experience is where a man learns how little he has learned in the other schools.

UNREMARKABLE REMARKS:
 Our idea of a good place to put your troubles, is in the pocket with a hole in it. . . . An American citizen is a man who demands better roads, bigger schools, a new post office, and a lower tax rate. . . . Women used to pay a heap more attention to that old advice "Feed the Brute." But maybe husbands were worth holding in those days. . . . The old-fashioned girl never knew what it was to smoke but she was never averse to looking for a match. . . . Facts are of slight value unless they are intelligently interpreted. . . . Speaking of unemployment, it might be mentioned in passing that the average person has twelve billion brain cells. . . . The boy who was once a ray of sunshine in his girl's life, is now merely one of her X-rays. . . . It costs more to support one vice than ten virtues. . . . One of life's blessings is that the simplest way is usually the best way. . . . By the time some toastmasters get through talking it's burned to a crisp. . . . Advice is more freely given than it is received. . . . Life is worth living better than most men live it. . . . Is there anything more dispiriting than a weepy woman? . . . It's easy to learn to love—it's the tuition that burns you up. . . . If we're economical today we're inclined to be extravagant tomorrow. . . . The most important part of every business is to know what ought to be done. . . . A person doesn't have to be a gardener to spread the dirt. . . . A girl gets a big kick out of her wedding, but the poor groom sounds like he was tongue tied. . . . The objection to an "open countenance" is the noise it makes while it is open.

Tagging Major League Bases

(By The Associated Press.)

Rival managers of the National League should have the privilege of protesting to Commissioner Landis or somebody if George Gibson of the Pirates pulls just one more three hit pitcher out of the hat.

By all the standards, Gibson already had exceeded the bag limit by producing two such phenoms as Steve Swetonic and Bill Swift in a single season, but now he has hauled out another to make life miserable for the opposition.

Henry Kremer, sole survivor of the Pirate pitching staff that was taken for a ride by the Yankees in the '27 world series, is the latest to come under the Gibson spell. All but forgotten in the excitement created by his younger teammates, the veteran had more or less been watching the parade go past until he was turned loose against the Boston Braves yesterday.

The result was a 1 to 0 victory for the Corsairs, and in the process Kremer allowed just three hits, two of them by Wally Berger. It was only the second complete game for Kremer this season, and in the other he was beaten by the same Braves.

Hub Preutt, another veteran, gave the Frenchman a battle all the way and lost only because Floyd Vaughan and Barbee put a single and a double together in the fourth inning. Both teams fielded flawlessly.

Chicago Trims Brooklyn

Matching the leaders stride for stride, the Chicago Cubs humbled Brooklyn, 8 to 3, as Lonnie Warneke registered his 13th victory. Charlie Grimm knocked in four Cubs runs with a home run and a single.

The Phillies fought 12 innings before they subdued Cincinnati, 4 to 3. Red Lucas's string of 13 complete games pitched was broken when he was relieved by Benton in the tenth, and Benton was charged with the loss. George Davis knocked across two Phillie runs, including the winner in the twelfth.

Giants Win

Freddie Lindstrom's homer with the bases full and Mel Ott's four bagger with three on featured the Giants' 12 to 4 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Cleveland's wild ride through the eastern sector of the American League was halted when the Yankees knocked Wes Ferrell from the hill and won, 8 to 5. Lefty Gomez scored his 15th victory.

Washington Still Winning

Washington ran its winning streak to seven straight at the expense of the St. Louis Browns, 8 to 7. Joe Cronin's double scored Sam Rice from first with the winning run in the last of the eighth after the Browns had counted five times in their half to tie the score.

Despite Al Simmons' three home runs and a double, driving in six runs, the Athletics dropped an 11 to 10 decision to Detroit in 11 innings. Jonathan Stone hit two homers for the Tigers.

For the second straight day, the Chicago White Sox picked the eleventh inning in which to defeat Boston, 4 to 2. Jack Hayes continued his spectacular play for Chicago, driving in two runs with a home run, a triple and single and handling 15 chances at second base.

Results Of The Monfri League

—By Pap Pan-Ams Ready To Meet Cementon

The Pan-Ams are all set for the Greene County Champs, Cementon, when they meet the heralded nine Sunday afternoon on the Pan-Am field on the Sengerties road. So far the Pan-Ams have a clean slate and are in hopes of keeping it in that perfect condition.

Ed Wilson will do the pitching for the oilmen in what is thought to be the toughest team the locals have met so far. The probable batteries are Carpenter and Roosa for the Pan-Ams, while Cementon will probably have the former Hanover College star, Smith to do its pitching.

The manager of Cementon has promised to have Bob Stripp, a brother of Jersey Joe Stripp, Brooklyn's third baseman, in the lineup for this game.

To Play Colonials
Next Sunday on the Pan-Am diamond the Kingston Colonials will play the oilmen. This game should arouse considerable interest since both teams have become outstanding among local ball clubs.

Rest of the lineup will be—Proctor, 1b; Laby, 2b; Purvis, ss; Fraleigh, 3b; Topp, Keator, T. Dehrosky and Partlan, outfield.

Blue Sox at Ravena, Battery—Coughlin, Peters or Huber, pitching and Tomaski, catching.

Irish Bombs at Troy, Battery—Wilbur Diamond, (3 baseliner), Battery for Wilbur, Kenny, pitching and Wenzel, catching. For Trojans, Welsh, pitching and Dunne, catching. Wilbur has already lost two games to the Trojans, 4-5 and 3-1.

Rondout Social Club at Haverstraw, Battery for Rondout, Komasa, pitching and Hosokoki, catching. Madalin, P. N. A. vs. Kingston, P. N. A. at Hasbrouck Park.

Kingston Colonials Play Saugerties

At the Athletic Field in the village of Saugerties Sunday afternoon, the Saugerties aggregation will meet the Kingston Colonials at 3:15 o'clock. This will be battle holding much for both local and out of town fans for most of the Kingston team is made up of the ball players of the real old Colonial team of years ago. Many will remember of the names of Leo Fitzgerald, Billy Schwab, Kid Moore, etc. This combination made up the outfield of the original Colonials and it will make up the outfield of this team Sunday.

Myers announced his lineup this morning as follows: Cragan, 1b; Morgan, 2b; Davitt, ss; Johnson, 3b; Rider, c; Fitzgerald, Moore and Schwab, outfield; Van Buren, Williams and Lewis, pitching.

Saugerties will have Paul Joyce of Kingston, 1b; Baker, 2b; Finger, ss; Bell, 3b; Hanna, rf; Simmons, cf; Brice, lf; Fraleigh, Sweet, p; Benjamin, c.

ELLENVILLE

Ellenville, July 16—Dr. Clarence D. Vrooman, who is convalescing from a serious operation performed at the Benedictine Hospital in Kingston several weeks ago, has satisfactorily recovered to be able to see his office patients.

John P. Geisler of Church street suffered a fractured right ankle Wednesday afternoon, when the limb of a cherry tree supporting his ladder, gave way, hurling him to the ground. X-ray pictures taken by Dr. Weiss, showed five broken small bones in the ankle. Mr. Geisler is at present resting comfortably at his home.

George Barnum of Napanoch is convalescing at the Veterans' Memorial Hospital from an operation performed on Monday by Dr. Snyder. A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Van Kleeck at the Veterans' Memorial Hospital on Wednesday, July 13.

Mr. and Mrs. William Krom and son, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Drew and son, Charles Millsap, motored to Poughkeepsie on Sunday where they visited the latter's son, Kenneth Millsap, who has been ill.

Mrs. Arthur Wright entertained two tables of bridge at her home Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Belle Russell of New York has been visiting Mrs. Isabelle Parker and Mrs. Ben Douglas at their home on Warren street.

Miss Mary Cherney spent the week-end at Asbury Park, N. J. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Carpenter of Tilton visited friends in town on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Startup have had as their guest this week Mrs. Startup's mother, Mrs. Amy Brown, of Saratoga county.

Mrs. Brown motored here with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Schiegel, who continued on to New York city. On their return the end of the week they were accompanied home by Mrs. Brown.

Mrs. Mary A. Griffin, who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. L. A. Hoornbeek, for two weeks, has returned to her home in Canaan, Conn. Mr. and Mrs. William Young of

Arlington Classic To Be Run Today

By The Associated Press.
Chicago, July 16 (AP)—America's richest 3-year-old stake, the Arlington classic, a mile and a quarter for a pot of gold totalling $90,150, comes up for decision at Arlington Park today with the winner proclaimed champion of the American turf.

Thirteen of the finest thoroughbreds in training were named as the more might be withdrawn before Flight, queen of the American turf, entry of C. V. Whitner of New York. This amazing dapper, undefeated as 2-year-old champion of 1921, ranked as favorite, with Fairness, winner of the Belmont, and Drayer and Shetlin stakes, racing as second choice.

Indications were that the race would be witnessed by a crowd of upwards of 40,000, and would be decided under perfect weather and track conditions. There was a heavy thunderstorm with a short downpour of rain last night, but this did not impair the track.

Beach mining at Nome, which produced several million dollars' worth of gold in the rush off 1893, is being revived.

SPORT SLANTS

By Alan J. Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

Max Schmeling, more popular than he ever was as a heavyweight champion who won his title on a technicality, will be back from Germany in a few weeks to resume a fighting career that may some day carry him to ring greatness.

He has his chance now to pick up again the steady progress he was making as a prize fighter when he overreached himself two years ago, and instead of the defeat Jack Sharkey was administering that night suddenly was awarded a championship on a foul.

Few fighters have ever climbed the title stairs with as little major experience as the leather-headed German. He leaped to his title chance in just three important bouts, a decision over Joe Sekyra, a knockout of Johnny Risko, and a decision over Paulino Uzcudun.

Even Jim Jeffries, who had but ten battles to his credit when he whipped Bob Fitzsimmons 40 years ago in Carson City for the most meteoric heavyweight title rise of all times, faced more testing, polishing opposition than that. Jim had to beat Gus Ruhlin, Joe Chynowski, Peter Jackson and Tom Sharkey on the way up.

Ruby Rob had at least 50 stiff matches before he got his title chance against Jim Corbett and Gentleman Jim had a score to his credit before he conquered the immortal John L. Sullivan.

It took Dempsey over 61 battles, against the toughest of foes, to develop his terrific attack.

Gene Tunney needed years of patient development and 50 fights to bring forth the ability that finally ended Dempsey's reign.

Even Jess Willard, in a white hope era that knew few real heavyweights, fought 50 times and beat such fellows as Arthur Pelky, Luther McCarthy, Gusboat Smith, Carl Morris, Hoer Rodol and Al Williams before he was matched with the best of all the heavyweight titlists, Jack Johnson.

Started From Taw

Schmeling came here four years ago with almost no boxing ability, and nothing to hint of future accomplishment except unlimited endurance, tremendous courage, ability to take punishment, and a sharp, short right hand.

Lack of experience, absolute inability to cope with a boxer and puncher of Sharkey's ability that night, stuck out all over Schmeling's offensive two years ago.

But he made a laboratory of his exhibition tours, developing his boxing, his punching, until he was able to make a show of Young Stripling last summer. And when he met Sharkey for the second time he was an even more improved warrior.

Now he will battle Mickey Walker, King Levinsky, or Max Baer some time this fall and with it should come even greater improvement.

Then he can fight Ernie Schaaf or Johnny Risko again, probably for the Garden in Miami in February. When next summer rolls around he will have the experience and polish he still needs.

PRELIMINARY EXAMS

FOR ARMY RECRUITS

Sergeant Robert E. Cawley, representative of the U. S. Army Recruiting Service for this district will be at the local post office building, daily between the hours of 8 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., from July 22, inclusive, for the purpose of interviewing young men seeking careers in the service of the United States Regular Army.
Although the sergeant will not have a large number of vacancies available for immediate assignment, he will, nevertheless, give all applicants applying the preliminary mental and physical tests, and those successfully qualifying are to be placed on the "eligible waiting list" from which they will be ordered to report to the Headquarters Recruiting Office at Albany for the final examination.
When enlistments are again open, an enlistment quota is expected to be allotted to this district during the early part of August and applicants at the top of the list will be given priority at that time.
All applicants will be required to thoroughly comply with the entrance standards, which are more exacting than ever before, the sergeant stated, and he summarizes his instructions
as follows:
Applicants for original enlistment must pass the intelligence test with a minimum rating of 60 which corresponds to completion of the eight grade in school. They must also satisfy the recruiting officer that they are the type suitable to, and desirable for, the service before being given the physical and intelligence examinations.
No man discharged from his first enlistment with character less than "very good" will be reenlisted for a second enlistment.
Border line cases will be rejected.
Character and marital status will be thoroughly investigated.
Quality, not quantity, is what the Army seeks today, concluded the sergeant.

Challenge to Science

Although fully dated and fully represented by portrait statues of priests and rulers, the brilliant civilization cultured the first empire of the Mayas which flourished in Yucatan and adjacent parts of Mexico, Guatemala and Honduras during the first six centuries of the Christian era is almost a complete mystery, and it will remain so until we learn to read Maya hieroglyphs to a much greater extent than now.
The amount of knowledge of the Mayan language and writings is really very limited, although scientists have given the subject much attention for many years. There seems to be plenty of material in the shape of monuments of one kind or another, but it has been almost impossible to find any key or clue which might lead to the desired explanation.

Live in Hot Water

In the middle of Arabia, at Hufuf, there are hot springs in which small fish live their ordinary lives. If these fish are put into cold water they die.
Yet the water feels hot enough not only to kill fish, but to cook it! They are prettily colored fish, with bright, green backs spotted with blue, yellow fins, and tails like silver with two or three black bands. No one knows how these fish came to live in this isolated desert oasis. Some hold that ancient Arabia, before the Dry Desert age began, was intersected by great deserts, and that oases, such as the one at Hufuf, are the only remains of these ancient highways.

Waterbirds' Sanctuary

It is curious that so few allusions have been made by travelers to the somewhat strange habit of eastern water birds and waders of spending their resting or digesting hours in ruins of cities, houses or tombs. Probably they do so to avoid such enemies as jackals, foxes or other enemies unable to climb to such hazardous places as these birds easily reach.
In the sacred Scriptures there are many such allusions, which have perhaps puzzled western people unaware of the habit of the water birds seeking sanctuary amid ruins.

Week's Events In Kingston Society

The "Woodland Club", of Woodland, N. Y., which was organized August 16, 1931, has, although it is so young an organization, become exceedingly socially prominent. The first officers to be elected were: Edward B. Miller, president; G. Leslie Ryder, vice president; Chester A.
Gaede, secretary-treasurer.
The club had its first dinner dance of the season last Saturday night at Boxmore Inn. Over 100 people from Woodland Valley, Chichester, and Phoenixia attended. Zucca's orchestra furnished the music which started at 10 o'clock and ended some time during the wee hours of the morning. The club expects to give several of these affairs during the summer season, the date of the next one to be announced in the near future.
A most excellent breakfast dinner served by J. Brink, the manager of the inn, was a popular feature of the evening. Punch was served to the many guests during dancing, among whom were: Mr. and Mrs. Valen-

Louisville, Ky., have taken a house in Stone Ridge for the summer. Mrs.
Rutledge was formerly Miss Virginia
Mitchell of this city.
A large number of people from Kingston were to be seen at the Woodstock Market Fair last Saturday morning. It is a rare treat to attend one of these affairs. They really are bigger and better than ever.
If one has an appreciation of color contrasts, there is not a better place to indulge one's tastes than right here. The booths this year are a riot of color, at one they were selling gorgeous bouquets of heavenly del-phiniums, zinnias, water lilies, and many other brilliantly hued flowers;
at another, beautifully made peasant costumes, imported from their very own countries, at still another booth antique jewelry was for sale, exquisitely hand fashioned, and then too, a breath taking display of hand blocked Christmas cards drew every eye in that direction. These are just a few of the many things for sale every Saturday morning on the Village Green.
The costumes the people wore who milled around the booths were fascinating and informal. Peasant costumes were well in the foreground, mother and children often dressed alike, gaily colored pajamas a great favorite, in fact anything comfortable and cool.
The Woodstock season is at its height, and with all its social activities and interesting visitors is really a most charming and enticing place.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodney B. Osterhoudt are spending a week with Mrs.

Hazel O. Fowler in Craigville on Cape Cod.

Miss Jean Gregory was hostess at a supper party, one evening this past week, to a number of the younger set.
The Gregory summer home,
"Mirvana", situated in Watson Hollow, was the scene of festivities.

Henry Osterhoudt spent the past week-end in town with his parents,

John A. Kingsbury, executive of a national foundation engaged in promoting social welfare, was the guest speaker at the first of a series of Sunday afternoon teas initiated at the Woodstock Country Club on last Sunday. The title of Mr. Kingsbury's address was "What I Do Not Know About Russia".

Mr. Kingsbury, who for more than 20 years has taken an active part in the national fight against tuberculosis, will leave shortly for an extended trip to Russia where he will Going to College?

The Moran School offers an intensive summer course teaching college students how to typewrite correctly and speedily. This enables students to type their assignments—compositions, theses, etc.
With this ability, they may, if desired, earn considerable money by securing part-time employment and by typing for other students and for faculty members.
Ask for further details. Tuition surprisingly low.

THE DANGER OF NEURITIS
The neuritis victim scarcely knows the danger of this disease. Usually the pain is so persistent day and night that any measure of relief is welcome and no thought of future danger is possible. Yet, there is danger, unless neuritis is rightly treated.
Neuritis, like neuralgia, may be caused by a local spinal nerve derangement, and thus affect only a local part of the body. If the neuritis is in many parts of the body it indicates a more general derangement of the spinal nerves.
The danger of neuritis, if not quickly checked, is that the heat in the nerve finally atrophy or destroys the nerve. This degeneration of nerve tissue, if the neuritis, for instance, affects the arm, amounts to a loss of power in that arm. Neuritis should be checked at once. Be on the safe side by having a scientific Chiropractic examination made now, because Neuritis is a nerve affection, and Chiropractic deals directly with the nervous system.

HOSPITAL FAILS, BUT CHIROPRACTIC HELPS
"For several months I suffered with sharp, lightning-like pains in my left hip and leg. I was unable to lie down or walk without pain. I consulted several doctors, applied medicine externally and finally was taken to a hospital, but even there found no relief. Then my brother-in-law suggested a chiropractor and after a few treatments I began to feel better. It is now four months since I took the last treatment and there has been no pain of any kind and I work every day."—Adelbert Seizwe, Chi-never accepting cases that we cannot benefit.

In addition to the training received at the world's most prominent Chiropractic universities, supplemented by seventeen years' actual practice and observation, we have originated and are using our own system of painless treatment which is a distinct advance over methods commonly in use.
